HIGH RANK OFFICERS SEE CAMP GRAYLING

Grayling was honored Tuesday evening by the arrival of several military officers of the highest rank. They were here to accompany Hon. W. James, congressman of the 12th district of Michigan who is chairman of the military committee of the House, on a tour of inspection of military camps.

The members of the party were, in addition to Congressman James as follows: Major Gen. J. E. Fochet, head of the U. S. Aircraft department; Brig. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding officer of the Sixth Corps Area of the U. S. Army; Major T. W. Hammond, secretary of the War college; and air pilots Lt. H. A. Dinger, Lt. Pete Tuesdada, Sgt. Paul Ritter.

They arrived at about 5:30 p. m. Tuesday and were not at the flying field by Col. J. S. Berser, adjutant general of Michigan National Guard. The party immediately started to the Camp Grayling State Military Reservation where the visitors made a very thorough inspection of the camp.

They pronounced it to be the finest military camp in America. This was their first visit here and they had expected to find a broad expanse of sand plain land but were agreeably surprised to find a camp made up of plains, hills and valleys, where the land was slightly sloping and with the best of drainage, and in the middle a very beautiful body of water—Lake Margrethe. They were very much pleased with the flying field also.

Congressman James is giving a lot of his time in looking over the military properties of the nation, in his capacity of chairman of the huge military committee and is responsible for the housing problems of the army. He was responsible for the appropriations of over three hundred million dollars last year for military purposes. He says that he gives these matters personal attention and that it is certain that the War department ever go contrary to his recommendations.

The distinguished visitors stopped at Shoppenagosa Inn that night and left at about 11:00 a. m. the following morning—Wednesday. From time to time the law to Ossineke. After inspection of the aviation field there they were to leave for the Soo where they were to circle the city but not land due to the lack of a landing field at that city. The night stop was to be at Ishpeming.

These are the highest ranking officers that ever visited Grayling, and the fact that they were so favorably impressed with the camp and airport, it may mean still greater improvement and use of the camp.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS AT CAMP

School is out and the desire to go camping has reached the hearts of the Campfire Girls, and by the courtesy of Misses Hood and Lundall their desire has been fulfilled.

Monday morning bright and early they loaded Jerry Hanson's truck with cots and tents and set out for Kyle lake. On the way they had the misfortune to have three tents burn up but others have been secured and they are now nicely established. Kyle lake is an ideal spot to camp and we are sure the girls will have a glorious time.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Commencement exercises for Grayling High School were held last Thursday evening with a full attendance present. A class of sixteen students in cap and gown graced the platform, accompanied by Mr. B. E. Smith, Professor Wilbur of Ypsilanti Normal College, the speaker of the evening, Mr. Bates, secretary of the Board, Dr. C. R. Keyport, chairman of the Board, and Rev. J. W. Greenwood, who gave the invocation and the benediction.

The music for the evening was supplied by Mrs. Smith's orchestra and the ladies' sextette composed of the following ladies: Mrs. Goethel, Mrs. Clippert, Mrs. Jarmin, Mrs. Milnes, Miss Tetu and Miss Hermann gave popular selections which were much enjoyed.

The main event of the evening however, was a very well prepared address by Professor Wilbur. He reviewed the history of the public school, and pointed out the place it held in American life and interest. Then he dealt at length with some of the modern problems facing America and the world at this time, and suggested to the graduates what would be expected of them in facing these tasks. The address was very well received, and contained much food for serious thought.

Mr. Smith made a very gracious speech in presenting the students for their diplomas, and the diplomas were presented by Mr. Bates on behalf of the Board.

A complete surprise to Mr. Smith was the short address by Mr. Greenwood as he stood up to pronounce the benediction. Speaking on behalf of the citizens of Grayling, he called attention to the fact that since Mr. Smith had spent eight years in service as superintendent and was about to leave for Detroit, it was fitting that his friends should remember him in some tangible way. Thereupon he presented Mr. Smith with a life membership in the National Educational Association. This gift is a mark of high honor, and carries with it many privileges, and Mr. Smith was completely taken by surprise, but replied in very suitable way, in thanking the people of Grayling for their gift.

The benefit closed a very interesting program and the graduates were the recipients of congratulations and many gifts.

According to a bulletin received from the Navy Recruiting Station, Detroit, Michigan, the Navy Department has asked for bids on two rigid dirigibles which Congress has authorized. About $8,000,000 will be expended for these ships which will be 787 feet long and 132 feet in diameter. They will each carry a crew of 16 officers and 45 enlisted men. They will also carry 5 airplanes. The cruising radius will be 11,000 miles.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Nomination of Hoover by Republicans Outstanding Event of the Week.

THE Republican national convention focused the attention of the country for at least five days of the week. The nomination of Herbert C. Hoover as the Republican candidate for the Presidency, a foregone conclusion before the doors of the convention hall were opened to the delegates, left the proceedings largely a matter of routine, except for the battle over the platform.

The outstanding feature of the convention seen in retrospect was the Hoover control of the proceedings. It was supreme, but it was a mannerly orderly control. No rough stuff. Opponents of the Hoover majority were courteously given ample opportunity to present their side of the questions at issue and no restraint was put upon the delegates when their enthusiasm burst into long and noisy demonstrations, as it did particularly when the nominations were made.

The agricultural plank of the platform, as expected, launched the big fight of the convention. A determined fight on the plank presented by the majority of the committee was made by the western farm leaders.

This plank, formulated after two days and nights of labor in the committee, ignored any mention of the controversial equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen bill, but pledged every assistance in the reorganization of the farmers' marketing machinery. It proposed the creation of a farm board with power to set up farmer-owned and controlled corporations to prevent and control surpluses, through orderly distribution.

Facing an admittedly losing fight the farm leaders battled on earnestly and at great length, submitting only when the majority of the delegates voted approval of the committee's plank.

A less earnest but less time consuming battle, and also a losing one, was waged on the prohibition plank which advocated observance and vigorous enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment.

For the first time the radio made the proceedings of a national political convention available to people in all parts of the country. Other conventions have been broadcast, but never before was there a hook-up of broadcasting stations so distributed that anyone with a receiving set anywhere in the country could hear the entire proceedings.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE on Monday night gave his semiannual report on the "business of government as it has been handled during the last few years and outlined his policies for the next six months before a gathering of the department heads in Memo Hall, Washington.

"It has been my endeavor," he said, "so to manage the national finances as to secure the greatest benefit to the people. I have rejoiced in keeping down the annual budget, in reducing taxes, and paying off the national debt, because the influence of such action is felt in every home in the land."

The people, he said, must trust their own prosperity. It cannot be handed down to them by the government. And when they have it they must rise above it in spiritual outlook.

"Prosperity," he said, "is only an instrument to be used, not a deity to be worshipped."

Reviewing the condition of industry and trade since 1921, he said:

"Stabilization" and a feeling of security have been the primary factors in the great upward swing of American industry and commerce since 1921."

The tax question, he declared, has been approached from the angle of reducing no more from the people than necessary to operate the government efficiently.

"The revenue acts of 1921, 1924, 1926 and 1928," he said, "when fully operative will reduce taxes by approximately two billions of dollars a year as compared with what would have been collected if the act of 1918 had remained in force."

"It is inconceivable that in such a short space of time the government could cut its tax rates to such an extent. Yet that has been done. Millions of individuals in the lower brackets have been entirely stricken from the tax rolls. Personal exemption for individuals and heads of families have been greatly increased."

"Preferential treatment has been given to earned income. War taxes and nuisance taxes have been repealed. Business has been freed of many hampering and uneconomic restrictions. The prosperity of today can be attributed in a large measure to the lessening of the burden of federal taxes."

"The reduction which has been made in the national debt since July 1, 1921, has contributed much to the ability of the government to lessen taxes. That reduction at the end of this fiscal year will amount to approximately $6,527,000,000. The total debt will then be $17,005,000,000. It is one-third paid.

The total saving in interest over all that period will amount approximately to $950,000,000. The reductions in the debt required by law for the same period total $3,296,000,000.

"By the end of this fiscal year we will actually have applied to debt reduction $3,031,000,000 more than required by law. That represents what was saved from national revenue. These, together with refunding operations which converted securities bearing high rates of interest into securities bearing lower rates, represent a perpetual saving in interest of $274,000,000 a year.

For the current fiscal year, which closes in a few weeks, the President said there would be a surplus in excess of four hundred million. Estimates are being prepared for 1929 and 1930. On this he said:

"Taking into consideration the legislation enacted during the last session of congress, we find that for 1929 our receipts will be about $3,707,000,000 and our estimated expenditures $3,801,000,000. These estimates might seem to forecast a deficit. We must not have a deficit."

"The cost of government in the United States, federal, state and municipal, in 1921 was $9,000,000,000. In 1925 it had increased to $11,124,000,000. During that period the national government had reduced its expenditure by two billions."

"The necessity of keeping expenditures within receipts, the importance of continuing our pay-as-we-go policy, cannot be overemphasized. This primary limitation on estimates is the first step toward the continuation of that policy in 1930. It means that there will be no latitude for expansion where expansion is not made compulsory by law or by conditions that leave no choice. In preparing your preliminary estimates for 1930, which you will submit to the budget bureau by July 1 next you must keep this in mind."

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

The popular belief that running water purifies itself in the mountains purifies itself every few hundred feet and is always safe is not accepted by the sanitation authorities, says the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. In streams used as a camp water supply, bathing or wading is a dangerous source of contamination. The throwing or dumping of refuse into the streams is frowned upon by the Forest Service, which asks the cooperation of its visitors in the National Forests during the vacation season in keeping camp grounds clean and preventing stream pollution.

A hog will find shade in hot weather if he can. However, he does not realize that a shady place often may be too hot and he is likely to stay there and die from overheating. Unless hog houses are high and have plenty of ventilation and air space, it is better to keep them closed in hot weather and force the hogs to seek shade elsewhere. If shade from trees is not available, a good artificial shade may be made by setting posts in the ground and building a cheap framework about four feet high, covering it with brush, hay, or straw. This shade is better than one made of boards or sheet iron. Ducts accumulating under it can be settled by watering the covering; this will at the same time cool the air underneath.

Toads often begin their mating before sunset and continue through the greater part of the night, thus taking the place in the warfare against insects, of the ground-eating insectivorous birds that stop eating after daytime is over. Since toads eat in numbers of insects that are injurious to crops, it can be said that they are of some economic value, particularly in destroying millipedes, sawflies, weevils, caterpillars, crickets, and leaf chafers. Toads also render useful service on the farm by reducing the number of adult click-birds, as there is hardly a cultivated plant that is not attacked by these insect pests. Toads are not exact about their menu and will eat indiscriminately any ground-frequenting insect.

A baited trap often may be used in summer to reduce the annual crop of newly fledged English sparrows. These young birds in their search for food will enter traps that usually are avoided by the adult birds during

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Helium

Helium is a wonderful element which is made from radium. It is through this process of its making that we can determine the age of rocks. Scientists know how long it is required for radium to make it soft into helium and by measuring the amount of each in certain rocks we can tell how long they have been there.

THE MODERN GIRL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

GiRLS are different from what they once were. The first thing we know some girl will take into her head that she will look well in the Presidential chair, and she will pull the strings and play her cards to get the job. Girls didn't run for office when I was young. Sometimes the fellows gave them an unimportant place that no one seemed to care for. It was a courtesy, however, a concession to the weaker sex. It simply showed how generous and warm-hearted we were. Girls are indeed and shyly set back in the corner and waited until they were asked or brought forward. They were never so rude as to take the initiative.

It is not that way now. What a girl wants these days she goes after. She looks out for number one. She is practical and capable and agrees alive and is quite capable of looking after her own interests. She runs for office—any office in fact that she gets her eyes on—and she makes even palpitating speeches.

She doesn't exactly pass out the cigars and set up the drinks—she hasn't got that far yet, but she does hand out the apple sauce, and she gets you into a corner and asks you to vote for her in such a forceful way that there is no resisting her. She takes the lead now where once she sat in the corner and waited for the fellows to come round.

She's tremendously capable. Ethel is teaching school in a country town a hundred miles away and was invited down to a formal party. In our town and Nancy asked her to stay with us. She thought her party gown was quite all right until she heard it over just before packing it in the collar box, which she was bringing her to, and then she saw that it wouldn't do at all. It was too short and too regular around the bottom so she stopped in Bloomington on the way and bought some material. She got it at noon, designed and cut out the gown and had it made, beautifully made too, before dinner time had no home-made look, either. I assure you it might have come from Worth's or Susanne's shop. That's the way girls do things now.

I read a letter from Harriet a few nights ago. She's up in Duluth running a tea room and doing very well. Harriet is twenty-four, and so far has escaped male entanglements of any serious sort. She has had no desire to settle down and cultivate the domestic life. She is beginning to feel differently and things are likely to happen.

"I met a man when I was down in St. Louis in September visiting Susie," she wrote, "and how I did fall for him! He's six feet tall and has black hair,"—Harriet's hair is red—"and wonderful manners. He's just getting started in law, and isn't keen at this moment to marry. I'm going back in a month and work on him."

Poor man! He hasn't a chance.

Is THIRTY the Love Deadline?

MONTAGUE GLASS was born in England at Montague, July 23, 1877, but when he was thirteen years old, in 1890, he came to the United States.

He attended the College of the City of New York and from there continued his studies at New York University, then he branched out into journalism. For some time he devoted his time to newspaper work, until 1910, when he became editor of the Montague Glass, a monthly magazine.

Montague Glass has also written many plays and books, among the latter being "His Honor, Abe Potash," one of the most successful of the dozen books about his loquacious bald-chinned Mr. Glass, readers may be interested to know, is shared and at present lives in the south of France.

By MONTAGUE GLASS

"My niece got married last night to Max Tremblay but he doesn't love her. Abe Potash announced the other day, "Why, I thought he was crazy about her." Morris Perlmuter exclaimed, "What makes you think that he doesn't love her?"

"Well, he was thirty years old just week," Abe said, "and Will Durant, the author of 'The Ten Best Philosophers of 1927,' says that it is impossible for a man of thirty to fall in love—or for a woman neither for that matter."

"And how old is this here Will Durant?" Morris asked.

"I don't know exactly, but I suspect he's twenty-nine or twenty-eight," he replied, "which when he gets to be about thirty himself, Mawruss, he'll give you another statement pushing the age limit five years further so that by the time he's seventy, y'understand, he'll say that no man over seventy-five can fall in love, and if he's bed-ridden at that time, he'll be holding hands with the trained nurse and telling her confidentially that he meant eighty-five."

"Maybe you're right, because I don't know what the age limit for philosophers is when it comes to falling in love," Morris said, "but I do know that many a millionaire of sixty or over has fallen so dangerously in love with a prima donna of forty-five that his relations have been thinking—or getting out an injunction to prevent the millionaire's fortune from being passed on by the prima donna to her next husband or anyhow to the Casino at Monte Carlo."

"But you couldn't call that falling in love exactly—so far as the prima donna is concerned," Abe remarked.

"Why not?" Morris asked. "Which I ain't no author of 'How to be a Philosopher in Ten Lessons,' or any such book as that, y'understand—but at the same time, Abe, I don't see no reason why a prima donna of forty-five shouldn't fall in love with a millionaire of sixty-seven, not if I was on the jury which was trying the breach of promise case anyhow."

"But what about here Will Durant falls in love is where a man or woman couldn't eat or sleep for fear of losing the party of the second part," Abe said.

"Well, that only goes to prove that Durant may be a first class, Aunty-bear philosopher but that he ain't practical, because, Abe, flowers, theater tickets, meals in restaurants and automobile riding has become so expensive nowadays that a man under thirty ain't got the money to show true devotion," Morris declared. "You can't show true devotion with one box of mixed chocolates and two boxes every Saturday night in these times. Abe, otherwise somebody over thirty will come along and show true devotion with a ten dollar pair of seats for the Folies and dinner at a Park Avenue restaurant before the show; and how is a young fellow of less than thirty going to meet such competition unless he forgets checks on his employers or something?"

"There's a whole lot in what you say," Abe agreed, "although you are talking about falling in love from the standpoint of a business man and not a philosopher."

"Maybe I am," Morris said, "but even people have more business like than they used to be, Abe, and you'd be surprised at the number of romantic young ladies under thirty who, when they have fallen in love with a young man and then discover that he hasn't got the price of a square-cut solitaire engagement ring, fall immediately out of love again."

"Furthermore, Abe, there is even tots of cases where a young man under thirty was absolutely devoted to love with some girl as far as his earning capacity permitted and even went into debt for ornaments at twelve dollars apiece, y'understand, until he finds out that her father, instead of being one of the principal stockholders of the United Independent Electric Light companies of Delaware, Maine and New Hampshire, is only the head bookkeeper of such a corporation. The consequences is that next week, or even sooner, he is again devotedly in love with the daughter of Mrs. Jones or Jones, Biermiller & Lasky, the rainbow manufacturers. Then you don't agree with Will Durant, Abe, he asked.

"I don't say that I do, and I don't say that I don't," Morris concluded.

"But to my mind, Abe, nothing makes a man look so youthful and lovable in the eyes of a beautiful young girl, than when he comes round to see her with a spray of orchids in one hand and a square-cut six-carat solitaire diamond ring in the other."

Wall Paper in America

Wall paper was imported by the early settlers of the Colonies. The first factory for making wall paper was established in this country in 1780 by John B. Howell at Albany, N.Y., but the second one did not appear until 1810. During this period the wealthy people were in the habit of importing their wall paper from England and France.

STATE FAIR EXPECTING BIG ATTENDANCE

Detroit, June 19.—The largest attendance in the history of the Michigan State Fair is expected here Sept. 2-8, with prospects pointing to nearly 400,000 people viewing the 79th annual exhibition. With this anticipated increase over last year, when 256,000 paid admission to the grounds, despite the handicap of two rainy days, facilities for entering and leaving the grand stand have been enlarged two and one-half times, providing easier and more rapid access to the stands. The enlarged entertainment program this year is expected to add in breaking last year's record.

Of great interest to out-of-town visitors will be the competition in both draft and standard bred horses, where total premiums offered will reach $15,250. Entries in this department will close promptly Saturday, August 18, and exhibitors will be received on Saturday, Sept. 8. An entry fee of $2.00 will be charged each exhibitor in all classes except the Horse Show.

In the draft horse division, Class 1, Belgian, the total premium will be $2,600. In Class 2, Percheron, the amount will be $2,510, while appropriate prizes will be offered in Class 3, Pure Draft Mares; Class 4, Commercial Horses; Class 5, Draft Horse Pulling Contest and Class 6, Standard Bred.

G. A. Prescott, Jr., Tawas City, is in charge of the competition of animals, which will be referred to Dr. B. J. Killam, State Veterinarian. Dr. Hutton will act as official veterinarian of the Horse Show. The following have accepted invitations to act as judges in the horse department: Charles Burgess, William H. draft horses; Shumway, Columbus, G.; A. S. Thompson, Paducah, Ky., hunters, light horses, ponies and horse show.

During the evenings, in conjunction with 21 sets of vaudeville, the pageant and fireworks spectacles, "A Night in Bagdad" will hold the interest of the audience. This is the most impressive and complete presentation of oriental fantasy that has been shown to date in any state fair in the country. A procession of hundreds of Bagdad's citizens in colorful dress will precede the illumination of the city, which is shown on a stage 500 feet long. Jeweled palaces, sparkling minarets and domes of the city will stand out in relief against the background. A special cast of actors and ballet dancers will participate in the ceremony accompanying the pageant, which ends in a glorious burst of fireworks and enormous set pieces, punctuated by detonations from electric bombs.

The growth of the state fair this year is reflected by the leasing to date of $40,000 worth of space, compared with $30,000 sold at this time last year. Many of the buildings at the fair have been renovated and their lighting and ventilation greatly improved. The Main, Machinery, Electric and Dairy Buildings will house a host of laborious devices reducing the housewife's daily chores.

Leading his famous military band of 100 musicians and soloists, Lieutenant-Commander John Philip Sousa, who marks his golden jubilee as a conductor this season, will open the fair with a sacred concert in the Coliseum on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 2. In the evening he will give a patriotic program. Sousa will give two concerts daily during this fair. Harness racing will be seen five afternoons from Monday to Friday inclusive, with an automobile race on Saturday afternoon featuring nationally famous race drivers.

The official program list, officials states will be mailed to any one going to the office at the Fair Grounds.

Ample auto parking space within the grounds will be provided for those driving to the fair. General admission will be 25 cents.

Whole wheat in wholesome form

The whole wheat—all of it, and nothing else, is in Shredded Wheat. None of the healthful qualities, not even the bran is lost. And better still, the grain is steam-cooked, shredded, formed into large loaves and baked all the way through. This is not just to bring out the flavor. It insures easy digestion and enables grandfathers to secure the full benefit of nature's most important food.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Lewis and two sons arrived Saturday evening to open their summer cottage at Lake Margaret for the season. Mr.
Lewis returned to Flint Tuesday morning when he is owner of a large drug store.

Friends here have received invitations

Fitzgerald to Mr. Charles Cooper at Richfield, Mich. The bride and groom have been in Grayling about six years now.

Miss Margrethe and Oiga Nelson entertained Miss Sylvia Rothenberger of Bay City from Saturday to visit from Mrs. Winifred McLean

Today NASH presents a New and Finer Motor Car

New Twin Ignition Motor New Salon Bodies

"The three new Nash Series, which are being introduced everywhere today, achieve the ambition of my manufacturing career.

"They represent an entirely new type of motor car, priced moderately, but offering you all the beauty and quality and performance heretofore exclusive to very expensive automobiles.

"To create such a car we had to develop an entirely new type of design and invest over $2,500,000 in dies and machinery alone.

"Both the Salon bodies and the high compression motors which power these new models exemplify the most radically modern advancement in body craftsmanship and engineering.

"Naturally space precludes the full listing of all features but I do want to draw your attention to a number of the outstanding attractions such as:

"—Twinignition, high compression, Bohnlite aluminum alloy pistons with Invar-struts, 7-bearing crank-shaft with hollowed crankpins, Bijur centralized chassis lubrication, Houdaille and Lovejoy shock absorbers, Biflex-Nash bumpers and bumperettes, chrome plating over nickel for all exterior metal ware, double-drop frame, one-piece Salon fenders and longer wheelbase lengths.

"This new-type engineering of the 400 motors makes them by far the best performing cars I have ever built.

"I don't think anyone will ever want to use all the speed and power they deliver.

"Equipment is absolutely complete at the factory list price and you need but no extras except a spare tire.

"If my judgment is worth anything you will find it well worth while to today to examine this new automobile development with the greatest care."
